GOTHAM MARKET TURNS SPOTTY

Irregularity of Prices Follows Recent General Rally in Stocks.

WAR SPECIALTIES HEAVY

Peace Talk Becomes Serious Factor With Speculators, Railroad Shares Receiving More Attention.

New York, May 9.—In the further sequel to the violence of the recent rally the stock market today became a somewhat confusing and not particularly significant conflict of dealings in which professional speculative activities obviously played a large part.

The structure of the swift upturn since last Friday morning was to put a set of technical factors at work for contradictions, and even reactionary price changes. Combined with these influences was the disconcerting effect of adverse news developments or unfavorable consideration connected with occurrences in the field of international politics.

Under the circumstances the share list might have displayed general weakness without furnishing a cause for surprise. The course of prices was instead more erratic than downward, the most interesting phenomenon being persistent preference for the railroads and other descriptions constituting the so-called peace stocks and of sellers for the war stocks.

Peace talk was more a factor within the operations of professional traders than any other matter connected with the situation outside the market.

Transactions in stocks were on a slightly reduced scale of activity, but the session was made up of intervals of comparative dullness and bursts of somewhat feverish animation. Rail and standard industrials held enough of an additional advantage to show a moderate average of gains at the close, but war time specialties were distinctly heavy.

COTTON MARKETS.

New York, May 9.—A wave of buying sales, especially into new high ground for the session today, was active. Wall Street interests who had sold out appeared to be replacing losses, and it was seen that several large short accounts had been covered. Buying interest from the South was strong, and the market closed with an advance of 20 to 30 points.

The detailed weather reports showed favorable conditions in the South as to temperatures, but price reports were coated of drought in the south Atlantic.

The cotton interest was in good demand at and ranged from 10c to 12c above the base of 2d. for ungraded. Figures in the English market were quoted at a mean advance of 3 to 5c points. Spot sales were 10c higher.
